I woke up one Monday morning it was a stormy morning my alarm woke me up with some water, I got my clothes on finally then left my house walked to the shop I could see people putting food and things in their pants people was biting each other. I stole some sweets and ran away. I fell over and cut up my leg open because I was scared of people biting me. I hopped all the way home as quick as I could.

On my arrival home my mother helped me with my leg. People were starting fires, smashing windows, people were trying to save lives trying with all their power, hundreds of people smashing windows, stealing clothes, food, money, jewellery.
