

My life in lockdown

When I first came into lockdown, I thought it was going to be hard to manage all of these things. But I realized it was going to be easy.

I started my first day of to a good start, it was like a normal day but working at home not school and not seeing my friends.

on the next day I had contact but it wasn't like any normal contact like seeing my family but it was over a phone call. I talked to my mum for about 10 minutes just talking about, what are we going to do after lockdown. So I had to end the call, because we had to go on a walk with the dog Dexter. It was fun walking with the dog and going to the shops.

Carlie used to tell me to run down the hill with the shopping and while they walk ahead and let me catch up, it was fun.

After a couple of weeks, it went alright nothing wasn't going to be hard everything was cool and chill.

In a couple of months I thought to myself, is this pandemic going to end? All I was seeing on the news is how many people killed? how many people caught the virus? and how many survived? I tried not to think about these things. So after seeing them all on the news, I didn't think about it. I just went on in my normal life like a teenager's life all moody and grumpy. But as a teenager I wasn't that moody or grumpy, I just chilled on my computer playing games online.

So really my life at locked down is doing alright, I'm still normal I'm still a human and still a boy and still the good old me.

At this day I'm doing great.
